
cool technology

Posted by Kostya Poukhov - 2010/02/10 03:16

<http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/science/nature/3495433.stm> Can help in criminal cases Kostya

=====

cool technology

Posted by Jeff - 2010/02/10 03:16

Can help in criminal cases So we're making progress in the thought police area.

=====

cool technology

Posted by Loren Pechtel - 2010/02/10 03:16

Can help in criminal cases So we're making progress in the thought police area. Basically the device is a mental version of a lie detector, but only for things with physical reality. It's a guilty knowledge test (note: the conventional polygraph is basically 100% effective when used to do a guilty knowledge test, this shouldn't be such an alien idea) involving pictures instead of words. You can tell if the guy saw the murder scene but you can't tell if he's supports Bush or Kerry.

=====

cool technology

Posted by Jeff - 2010/02/10 03:16

You can tell if the guy saw the murder scene but you can't tell if he's supports Bush or Kerry. They'll need complimentary tools, certainly, but this tool also has a role in thought policing.

=====

cool technology

Posted by Loren Pechtel - 2010/02/10 03:16

You can tell if the guy saw the murder scene but you can't tell if he's supports Bush or Kerry. They'll need complimentary tools, certainly, but this tool also has a role in thought policing. No, because it's limited to testing if images are familiar.

=====

cool technology

Posted by Jeff - 2010/02/10 03:16

They'll need complimentary tools, certainly, but this tool also has a role in thought policing. No, because it's limited to testing if images are familiar. That can be an important fence in the construction of the pen. People aren't going to object to the pen until all that's left to be built is the gate and it just closed.

=====