All charges dismissed , all walked FREE , except the one who admitted his guilt , having told the TRUTH he was jailed for life The shooting occurred as the private security firm's guards escorted a heavily armed four-truck convoy of U.S. diplomats through the Iraqi capital on September 16, 2007. The guards, U.S. military veterans, erupted in a blaze of gunfire at a crowded intersection. 14 unarmed civilians were killed and 20 wounded The defendants

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - A federal judge threw out all charges on Thursday against five Blackwater Worldwide security guards accused of killing 14 Iraqi civilians in 2007, Just a mess up. Blackwater guards were assisting CIA in a raid, they seem to have become spooked and started shooting. Blackwater should only be acting as guards. Prosecutor also fucked up. The prosecutors accessed and read statements that were given to an internal investigation which were not to be used for any prosecutorial purpose and used them as if they were a proper police investigation. The prosecutors then used those to obtain search warrants. Prosecutor should be sacked.

It would be interesting to see if the Nation of Islam would let you in Kanga, cuz' the Nation don't like crackas and you look suspiciously cracker in origin.

The clock is ticking on YOU shitskin arselifter Malcom Fabian ! The War on Terror has morphed into the War Against Islamic Radicalism. This religious radicalism has always been around, for Islam was born as an aggressive movement, that used violence and terror to expand. Past periods of conquest are regarded fondly by Moslems. The current enthusiasm for violence in the name of God has been building for over half a century. Historically, periods of Islamic radicalism have flared up periodically in response to corrupt governments, as a vain attempt to impose a religious solution on some social or political problem. The current violence is international because of the availability of planet wide mass media (which needs a constant supply of headlines), and the fact that the Islamic world is awash in tyranny and economic backwardness. Islamic radicalism itself is incapable of mustering much military power, and the movement largely relies on terrorism to gain attention. Most of the victims are fellow Moslems, which is why the radicals eventually become so unpopular among their own people that they run out of new recruits and fade away. This is what is happening now. The American invasion of Iraq was a clever exploitation of this, forcing the Islamic radicals to fight in Iraq, where they killed many Moslems, especially women and children, thus causing the Islamic radicals to lose their popularity among Moslems. Normally, the West does not get involved in these Islamic religious wars, unless attacked in a major way. Moreover, modern sensibilities have made that more difficult. For example, fighting back is considered, by Moslems, as culturally insensitive ( war on Islam ), and some of the Western media have picked up on this bizarre interpretation of reality. It gets worse. Historians point out, for example, that the medieval Crusades were a series of wars fought in response to Islamic violence against Christians, not the opening act of aggression against Islam that continues to the present. Thus, the current war on terror is, indeed, in the tradition of the Crusades. And there are many other Crusades brewing around the world, in the many places where aggressive Islamic militants are making unprovoked war on their Christian neighbors. Political Correctness among academics and journalists causes pundits to try and turn this reality inside out. But a close look at the violence in Africa, Asia and the Middle East shows a definite pattern of Islamic radicals persecuting those who do not agree with them, not the other way around. While Islamic terrorism grabs most of the headlines, it is not the cause of many casualties, at least not compared to more traditional wars. The vast majority of the military related violence and deaths in the world comes from many little wars that get little media attention outside their region. Actually some of them are not so little. While casualties from terrorism are relatively few (usually 5,000-10,000 dead a year worldwide), the dead and wounded from all the other wars actually comprise about 95 percent of all the casualties. The Islamic terrorism looms larger because the terrorists threaten attacks everywhere, putting a much larger population in harms way, and unhappy with that prospect. But in the West, and most Moslem nations, Islamic terrorism remains more of a threat than reality.

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - A federal judge threw out all charges on Thursday against five Blackwater Worldwide security guards accused of killing 14 Iraqi civilians in 2007, 1 In Iraq arab muslims: sunni shiite, kurds, marsh arabs are killing each other at a rate of thousands per year far more than western forces who are targetting insurgents but sometimes kill civilians by accident or because they are freaked. 2 Its seems it needs a dictatorship to stop muslims killing each other and other people. Even western nations which develop a core of muslim immigrants seem to have to up their security levels to the point they become authritarian. 3 This indicates to me that the mindset that Islam produces is not conducive to peace and giving up grudges. 4 As far as the Aboriginal are concerned, yes they were screwed but they we're in such a primitive state it seemed unavoidable as the european population grew and came into resource conflict with their nomadic hunder gatherer lifestyle. Australia tries to make it up to the Aboriginals, the problem seems to be one of the victimology applied by the lunar left: they expect tribal aboriginals to have a middle class life in remote regions so devoid of resources White europeans have no interest. Aboriginals need decent jobs and they need to same values as European folk if they are to succede. Trying to load up aboriginals with the victimology of islam won't help them. All Malcolm-X taught his people was blame whitey and as a result those that have accepted that mesage do little else. He was a pimp and a drug pusher and helped maintain the 'ghetto' culture.

<snip 200 lines of Kanga shit now he's an x malcolm.. Does Google let you snip stuff? Clearly we are now entering the last stages of WW1 , and there is only room for one winner , islam christianity and judaism can never co exist The principle has been paraphrased into the maxim complete competitors cannot coexist . this WAR will escalate until only one survives as distinct to superpowers who will come and go , the desire to have a GOD is universal and always will be , but the battles / WARS over the right to believe can only end when one of these 3 over runs the other 2 , all other smaller belief systems will fade away , and its clear Islam will , given time , replace all others based on sheer numbers and toughness , survival of the fittest , Islam is growing very fast despite or indeed because of the hardship NOTHING can stop Islam from replacing ALL other religions , in time WHO CARES what you or I believe or what the books say , it matters not now we are trapped in a WAR that the christians and jews STARTED in 1914, some say 1492 , and it will never end until only ONE religion remains , there can never be peace again until the western white christians and jews are prevented from invading one country after another as they have done for the last 500 years the time has arrived to END the war forever , it wont be pretty and billions will die , but christian and jewish / funded by western taxpayers , will NEVER act like civilized human beings UNTIL they are exposed as the REAL terrorists of the last 500 years who have invaded EVERY country on EARTH , many several times , in their endless lust for power and stolen wealth ALL men and women of goodwill MUST help end the WAR the western christians and jews started in 1914 then the TRUTH will end the madness that has bought about this un winnable war for christian and jews gods and their wealthy jewish bankers In ecology: modeling population growth A logistic function or logistic curve is the most common sigmoid curve. It models the S-shaped curve (abbreviated S-curve) of growth of some set P, where P might be thought of as population. The initial stage of growth is approximately exponential; then, as saturation begins, the growth slows, and at maturity, growth stops.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Verhulst\_equation#The\_Verhulst\_equation Competitive exclusion principle From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia Jump to: navigation, search In community ecology, the competitive exclusion principle, sometimes referred to as Gause's Law of competitive exclusion or just Gause's Law, is a proposition which states that two species competing for the same resources cannot stably coexist if other ecological factors are constant. One of the two competitors will always overcome the other, leading to either the extinction of this competitor or an evolutionary or behavioral shift towards a different ecological niche. The principle has been paraphrased into the maxim complete competitors cannot coexist . http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Competitive\_exclusion\_principle original message at:

http://docs.google.com/View?id=dcgk9t7p\\_228cgf63ncb Pierre-François Verhulst (1804-1849) A typical application of the logistic equation is a common model of population growth, originally due to Pierre-François Verhulst in 1838, where the rate of reproduction is proportional to: \* The existing population \* The amount of available resources all else being equal. Thus the second term models the competition for available resources, which tends to limit the population growth. Letting P represent population size (N is often used in ecology instead) and t represent time, this model is formalized by the differential equation:  $\frac{dP}{dt} = rP \left( 1 - \frac{P}{K} \right)$  where the constant r defines the growth rate and K is the carrying capacity. Interpreting the equation shown above: the early, unimpeded growth rate is modeled by the first term +rP. The value of the rate r represents the proportional increase of the population P in one unit of time. Later, as the population grows, the second term, which multiplied out is -rP<sup>2</sup>/K, becomes larger than the first as some members of the population P interfere with each other by competing for some critical resource, such as food or living space. This antagonistic effect is called the bottleneck, and is modelled by the value of the parameter K. The competition diminishes the combined growth rate, until the value of P ceases to grow (this is called maturity of the population). christianity has entered the stage of decline as Islam is set to double in the next 15 years , then double again in the next 15 years based on present birth rates Let us divide both sides of the equation by K to give  $\frac{d}{dt} \frac{P}{K} = r \frac{P}{K} \left( 1 - \frac{P}{K} \right)$  Now setting x = P / K gives us the differential equation

$\frac{dx}{dt} = r x (1-x)$  For  $r = 1$  we have the particular case with which we started. In ecology, species are sometimes referred to as r-strategist or K- strategist depending upon the selective processes that have shaped their life history strategies. The solution to the equation (with  $P_0$  being the initial population) is  $P(t) = \frac{K P_0 e^{rt}}{K + P_0 (e^{rt} - 1)}$  where  $\lim_{t \rightarrow \infty} P(t) = K$ ., Which is to say that  $K$  is the limiting value of  $P$ : the highest value that the population can reach given infinite time (or come close to reaching in finite time). It is important to stress that the carrying capacity is asymptotically reached independently of the initial value  $P(0) > 0$ , also in case that  $P(0) < K$ . Time-varying carrying capacity Since the environmental conditions influences the carrying capacity, as a consequence it can be time-varying:  $K(t) > 0$ , leading to the following mathematical model:  $\frac{dP}{dt} = rP(1 - \frac{P}{K(t)})$  A particularly important case is that of carrying capacity that varies periodically with period  $T$ :  $K(t+T) = K(t)$ ., It can be shown that in such a case, independently from the initial value  $P(0) > 0$ ,  $P(t)$  will tend to a unique periodic solution  $P^*(t)$ , whose period is  $T$ . A typical value of  $T$  is one year: in such case  $K(t)$  reflects periodical variations of weather conditions. even primary school maths can tell Islam will sooner or later win the WAR based on simple numbers Only blind fools refuse to accept the basic numbers Every day there are MORE Muslims and less christians and jews Its only a matter of time play GAMES with the numbers if you want The end result is very very easy to see to anybody who really cares to crunch the numbers kanga =====
